- (b) produce or make available to the depository or to the Commission when required, any information or document relating to a securities account.

Section 10—Directions by central securities depository

(1) A depository may,[sic] give directions to an issuer of securities or a participant in performing its functions under this Act, and the issuer or participant shall comply with the directions.

(2) An issuer or participant who fails to comply with directions given by a depository commits an offence and is liable on summary conviction to a fine of not more than five hundred penalty units or a term of imprisonment of not more than five years or to both.

Section 11—Central securities depository to provide assistance to the Commission

(1) A depository shall provide assistance to the Commission for the performance of its functions.

(2) The Commission and its agents shall have access to any part of the premises of a depository at reasonable times to ensure compliance with this Act.

Admitted and dematerialised securities

Section 12—Issue of uncertificated or dematerialised securities

(1) An issuer of securities to the public may

(a) issue a security in uncertificated or dematerialised form where it is authorised in its regulations and authorised by a resolution of its board of directors,

(b) convert a certificated security into an uncertificated security where it is authorised in its regulations and by a resolution of its board of directors.

(2) A person may opt to hold a certificated security or a security in book-entry form with a depository.

(3) Where a person opts to hold a security with a depository, the issuer shall give to the depository, details of the allotted security.

(4) The depository shall on receipt of details of the allotted security enter it in its records in the name of the allottee as the beneficial owner of the security.

Section 13—Admittance of securities

(1) Subject to subsection (2), a stock exchange may, after consultation with a central securities depository, prescribe that any security

(a) listed or quoted, or

(b) proposed to be listed or quoted,

on the stock exchange, be admitted by depositing the security with the central securities depository.

(2) A stock exchange shall give notice to the public of all eligible securities prescribed by it to be admitted into a depository in respect of securities listed or quoted on the stock exchange.

(3) The deposit by a person of an eligible security with a depository participant shall be considered to be a deposit of the security with that central depository.

(4) A central securities depository shall hold securities in book-entry form only.

Section 14—Verification of certificates and transfer to a central securities depository

- (1) A depository or its participant shall lodge the certificate and instrument with the issuer within the period prescribed in the central securities depository rules after deposit of a certificate representing an eligible security and an instrument of transfer in respect of that security.
- (2) The issuer shall register the transfer of the security in respect of the certificates in the name of the depository or its nominee company on receipt of the certificate and instrument.
- (3) The issuer shall refuse registration of the transfer where
 - (a) the certificate is not a genuine certificate or is a certificate that has been reported lost or destroyed, and
 - (b) in relation to any security,
 - (i) there has been a duplication in the issue of the certificate representing that security,
 - (ii) a certificate has been issued in excess of the issued capital of the issuer, or
 - (iii) the issuer has been served with an order of a Court prohibiting dealing in respect of the security underlying the certificate.
- (4) The issuer shall, in any case other than a case referred to in subsection (3), cancel a certificate and substitute in its records the name of the depository or its nominee as a registered owner in respect of that security and inform the depository.
- (5) A depository shall enter the name of the depositor in its records as the beneficial owner.
- (6) Where an issuer refuses registration of a transfer, the issuer shall serve on the transferor and the central securities depository, a written notice giving reasons for the refusal.
- (7) An instrument of transfer lodged with an issuer may be registered in the name of a depository or its nominee company.
- (8) This section does not apply to bearer securities.

Section 15—Trading of eligible securities

- (1) This Act applies to trading in eligible securities during the period beginning on the day immediately after the notification date and ending on the admission date.
- (2) A depository or depository participant, shall accept a certificate representing an eligible security to be admitted for the purpose of settlement of any trade on a stock exchange in accordance with the central securities depository rule.
- (3) Section 14 shall apply to depository agents and issuers with whom the documents referred to in subsection (2) of this section have been lodged.

Section 16—Restriction on trade in eligible securities

- (1) A person shall not trade in any eligible security on a stock exchange, after the admission date, unless the security has been deposited with a depository in accordance with this Act.

(2) Despite subsection (1), an eligible security may be deposited at the depository after the admission date at any time subject to the additional fees, that may be imposed under the central securities depository rules.

Section 17—Receipt of certificates of eligible securities for safe custody

(1) A depository may prescribe a date by notice after which a member of a stock exchange may not receive a certificate representing an eligible security for safe custody.

(2) A depository shall give notice to the public of the date prescribed.

Section 18—Liability of a central securities depository for loss or damage of certificates

(1) A depository and its participants are liable to a depositor for any loss or damage in respect of a certificate deposited by a depositor with the central securities depository or depository participant.

(2) Despite subsection (1), a depository is not liable for loss or damage of a certificate the transfer of which is not capable of registration.

(3) Subsection (2) shall not relieve a depository participant from any obligation imposed on the depository participant by the rules of a stock exchange in its capacity as a member of the stock exchange to effect buying-in resulting from a refusal of an issuer to register a transfer.

Section 19—Withdrawal of immobilised securities

(1) A depositor may, withdraw a security standing to the credit of the depositor's securities account on application to the depository.

(2) Where an application for the withdrawal of a deposited security is made and the appropriate notification and withdrawal documents are received by the issuer or its share registry in accordance with the rules of the central securities depository, the issuer or its share registry, shall complete and deliver to the central securities depository certificates in connection with the transfer of the securities within 14 days after the date of receipt of the withdrawal documents to be forwarded to the participant.

(3) Despite subsection (1) withdrawals are not allowed for government securities.

Section 20—Trading of securities withdrawn from central securities depository

(1) A person shall not trade securities withdrawn from a depository on a stock exchange unless the security is re-deposited in a depository.

(2) A security which is re-deposited with a central securities depository shall not be utilised to settle a transaction which took place on a stock exchange prior to the re-deposit of that security.

(3) Section 15 relating to eligible securities shall apply in respect of a re-deposited security.

Section 21—Withdrawal of prescribed securities prohibited

(1) A person shall not withdraw from a depository,[sic] security which is prescribed as a dematerialised security.

(2) A stock exchange may, with the prior approval of the Commission, restrict or prohibit the withdrawal of a security or class of securities which is listed or quoted by the stock exchange for a period and in a manner as it considers appropriate.

(3) Where a stock exchange restricts or prohibits the withdrawal of book entry securities the stock exchange shall

(a) inform the depository of the decision, and

(b) give notice to the public of

(i) the book-entry securities restricted or prohibited from withdrawal, and

(ii) the period of the restriction or prohibition.

Section 22—Dematerialisation of securities

(1) A depository may in consultation with the Commission, prescribe a period after which securities or a class of securities held or to be held by the depository shall be dematerialised in accordance with the process laid down under the central securities depository rules.

(2) An issuer of a dematerialised security shall be notified by the depository, of the decision taken in accordance with subsection (1).

(3) An issuer of a dematerialised security shall

(i) give notice to the public that the security shall, on the dematerialisation date, become a dematerialised security; and

(ii) take necessary steps to amend its Regulations, deed of establishment, trust deed, or enabling statute, as the case may be, to comply with this Act and the central securities depository rules within a period stipulated in the notice upon being notified of the decision.

(4) A notice of dematerialisation shall specify a dematerialisation date of not less than one month from the date of publication of the notice.

Section 23—Central securities depository to maintain official record of depositors

(1) Every issuer of a security prescribed as a dematerialised security, shall on or after the dematerialisation date

(a) surrender the physical register of members or debenture holders to the depository, and

(b) provide information to the central securities depository of any member or debenture holder who appears in the appropriate register as a holder of a certificate not already admitted by the depository.

(2) A depository shall maintain an official Register which shall include the name and particulars of

(a) each depositor with a security credited to a securities account held by the depositor, and

(b) each member or debenture holder whose name appear under the appropriate register of members or debenture holders of the company.

(3) Despite sections 32 and 96 of the Companies Code relating to register of members and debenture holders, a record of depositors maintained shall

(a) contain information in computerised record form; and

(b) contain any other information as may be required under the central security depository rules.

(4) This section shall not apply to any bearer security, or be construed as making the depository an agent of the issuer for the purpose of providing registration services.

Section 24—Issuer not to issue certificates in respect of dematerialised securities

An issuer shall not issue a certificate in respect of a dematerialised security after the dematerialisation date.

Section 25—Effect of reference to records in a central securities depository

(1) With effect from the date of dematerialisation and despite the provisions of the Companies Code or the Regulations of the issuer, a reference in respect of a dematerialised security to

(a) a register of members or debenture holders including branch registers, maintained by a company under the Companies Code is a reference to the record of depositors maintained by the depository,

(b) a transfer of shares or debentures under the Companies Code is a reference to a book-entry transfer performed by the depository, and

(c) a certificate, or an instrument of transfer representing any security which is used as prima facie evidence of ownership of that security is a reference to a statement of account issued by the central securities depository.

(2) Sections 32 and 96 of the Companies Code shall not apply to a dematerialised security.

Section 26—Application to collective investment schemes

(1) With effect from the dematerialisation date and despite any provision in a trust deed of a collective investment scheme, a reference to

(a) a register of a collective investment scheme, is a reference to the record of depositors maintained by the depository,

(b) a transfer of interest in a collective investment scheme from one investor to another, is a reference to a book-entry transfer by the central securities depository, and

(c) a certificate issued as evidence of an interest in a collective investment scheme, is a statement of account issued by the depository.

Section 27—Rules in respect of dematerialised securities

The Commission may prescribe rules in respect of dematerialised securities

(a) to effect the replacement of physical registers with book-entry records where the dematerialised security is a security other than a share or debenture under the Companies Code, or an interest in a collective investment scheme, and

(b) to specify forms for recording interest in securities standing to the credit of any depositor before the dematerialisation date.

Securities accounts and records

Section 28—Dealers in book-entry securities to hold securities account

(1) A person shall not deal in book-entry securities unless the person holds a securities account with a central securities depository.

(2) A depository may establish different types of securities accounts for different classes of persons or securities.

(3) An entry in a securities account in respect of a transaction shall

(a) in the case of a securities account established and maintained directly by a central securities depository be considered to have been made by, or with the authority of, the central securities depository; and

(b) in the case of a securities account established through, and maintained by a depository agent on behalf of a depository, be considered as having been made by, or with the authority of, [sic] the depository agent.

(4) A record of an entry in a securities account in respect of a transaction in book-entry securities shall be prima facie evidence of the matters recorded.

Section 29—Issuance of statements of accounts

(1) A depository shall issue statements of accounts to depositors, in respect of book-entry securities held by or registered in the name of the depository or its nominee company for the depositors at a time and in a manner prescribed.

(2) Despite subsection (1), a depositor may, require the depository to issue by written notice to the depositor, a statement of accounts in respect of book-entry securities held by or registered in the name of the depository or its nominee company on behalf of the depositor.

(3) A depository shall on receipt of a written notice and upon payment of charges which may be imposed under the central securities depository rules, issue to the depositor the statement of account required.

(4) A statement of accounts issued under this section is evidence of truth of the matters specified in that statement of account.

Section 30—Duty of central securities depository to keep records and accounts

A depository shall keep records and accounts to show particulars of

(a) transfers of book-entry securities to and from a securities account,

(b) income received from commissions, fees, charges and other sources, and expenses, commissions, and other payments made or paid by the central securities depository, and

(c) assets and liabilities including contingent liabilities of the central securities depository.

Section 31—Audit of records and accounts

(1) A depository shall cause an audit to be conducted in respect of its records and accounts at the end of each financial year.

(2) The audit shall include a verification of the accuracy of the details shown in the records and accounts.

(3) The depository shall submit a copy of a duly certified audit report to the Commission within ninety days after the end of the financial year.

(4) The Commission may, by notice in writing, direct that an audit be conducted of an aspect of or all of a central depository's operations at the expense of the central security depository.

Securities transactions and entries

Section 32—Evidence of transactions in respect of deposited securities

A transaction in respect of a deposited security by a depositor

(a) whether accompanied by an instrument or not shall be by entry in the securities account of the depositor, and

(b) shall include a deposit of an eligible security and a trade or transfer of a book-entry from a securities account to another securities account maintained by the depository.

Section 33—Provision of record of depositors to issuers

(1) An issuer of a book-entry security may by written notice require a depository to furnish it with a record of the depositors in whose securities accounts, securities are credited as at the date of the notice.

(2) A record of depositors

(a) required by an issuer shall be issued by the depository within the period specified in the notice and in any case before the expiry of a period specified under the central securities depository rules;

(b) issued in response to a request made by an issuer shall contain the name, identity card, passport number or company number and statement or the number of book-entry securities held in favour of each depositor;

(c) obtained by an issuer shall be available for inspection by a member of an issuer without the payment of a fee but may be inspected by any other person on payment of a fee to the depository, in respect of each inspection.

(3) A member of an issuer or any other person may require the issuer to furnish him with a copy of the record of depositors or a part of it on the payment of a fee, commensurate to the quantum of information requested.

(4) The copy of the record of depositors, or a part of it shall be supplied to the person who required the copy within a period of twenty-one days or within a longer period that the Commission considers reasonable after the date of receipt of the request by the issuer.

Section 34—Depositor to be treated as member or debenture holder

(1) A depository shall be the registered owner of a security for the purposes of effecting transfer of ownership of that security on behalf of a depositor.

(2) A depository as a registered owner shall not have voting rights or any other rights in respect of securities held by it.

(3) A depositor of a book-entry security whose name appears in the record of depositors is entitled to rights, benefits, powers and privileges and to liabilities, duties and obligations in respect of the security as if the depositor were a member or debenture holder registered in an appropriate register maintained by the issuer of the security, in accordance with the Companies Code or any other law.

(4) Despite the Companies Code, a depositor is not entitled to attend a general meeting of a company, speak or vote at the meeting unless the depositor's name appears on the depository register forty-eight hours prior to the general meeting.

(5) A depository or its nominee company shall not have an interest in deposited securities registered in its name, or be a bare trustee.

(6) For the purpose of this section, "deposited security" does not include a security specified in the securities account as being in suspension under this Act or rules made by the Commission.

Section 35—Register of Depositors

(1) Persons named as depositors in a Register of Depositors shall, for the period that the deposited securities are entered against their names in the Register be

(a) members of the company in respect of the amount of deposited securities entered against their respective names in the Register of Depositors; or

(b) holders of the amount of the issuer's deposited securities other than shares entered against their names in the Register of Depositors.

(2) This Act shall not affect

(a) the obligation of a company to keep a register of its members, and allow inspection of the register under the Companies Code;

(b) the obligation of a company to keep a register of holders of debentures issued by the company and allow inspection of the register, under the Companies Code;

(c) the obligation of an issuer other than a company to keep a register of the holders of securities issued by the issuer;

(d) the right of a depositor to withdraw documents showing title to securities, from the depository at any time in accordance with the central securities depository rules and to register them in the depositor's name; or

(e) the enjoyment of a right, power or privilege, or the imposition of a liability, duty or obligation under the Companies Code, or any other enactment, instrument, or Regulations of a company on a depositor, as a member of a company or as a holder of debentures or securities, except to the extent provided for in this Act or prescribed by regulations made under this Act.

Section 36—Termination and set-off

(1) The Central Securities Depository may terminate its agreement

(a) to clear or settle securities transactions, or

(b) to act as a depository for securities with an insolvent participant or with a participant in respect of whom insolvency or bankruptcy proceedings are commenced.

(2) Where the central securities depository terminates its agreement, the depository may

(a) set-off obligations between the insolvent participant and the depository in accordance with the provisions of the agreement, and

(b) if there is a net termination sum owed to the depository by the insolvent participant, the depository shall be considered as a creditor of the insolvent participant in respect of that net termination sum.

(3) The depository may realise assets of the insolvent or bankrupt participant because of a pledge in favour of the central securities depository or because of the central securities depository rules or guarantees established by the depository in accordance with the central securities depository rules.

Section 37—Prohibition in dealings in book-entry securities

A depository shall not purchase, acquire, or deal in book-entry securities as principal other than for a purpose and in a manner that may be permitted by the Commission.

Section 38—Public offer of securities

(1) Where a stock exchange or a depository prescribes any securities proposed to be listed or quoted on a stock exchange to be immobilised or dematerialised, the issuer of the security shall notify the public that the security is prescribed in the prospectus or other offer document issued.

(2) Upon completion of the allotment or allocation of the security, the issuer or offeror shall

(a) confirm with the central securities depository the record of the successful applicants together with information required by the central securities depository in order to make appropriate entries in the securities accounts of the respective applicants, and

(b) deliver to the central securities depository the certificates, if any, in denominations specified by the central depository registered in the name of the central securities depository or its nominee company.

(3) For the purposes of this section

"offeror in relation to a security" means the person offering the security for sale.

"a reference to a security proposed to be listed on a stock exchange" means a reference to a security which has been approved by the Commission to be listed on the stock exchange.

Section 39—Corporate actions

(1) Where an issuer, in relation to book-entry securities

- (a) makes a bonus issue of shares by way of an increase in its total issued capital, or issue securities because of a rights issue or the conversion of debt securities, or
- (b) issues securities because of an exercise of a right or option to acquire securities in the share capital of the issuer.

the issuer shall notify the central securities depository and deliver to the central securities depository

- (i) a confirmed list of the names of the allottees for the purposes of amendment of the securities accounts held by the allottee, and
 - (ii) the appropriate certificates, if any, in denominations that may be specified by the central securities depository registered in the name of the central securities depository or its nominee company.
- (2) A prospective allottee shall, [sic]open a securities account with the central securities depository before acquiring any security.

Section 40—Underwriters to open securities accounts

A person who intends to underwrite securities proposed to be listed on a stock exchange, or rights issue in respect of a book-entry security, shall open a securities account with the central securities depository.

Section 41—Charging of securities

- (1) Where a security deposited with a depository is charged by a depositor referred to as "the charger" in favour of a person referred to as "the chargee" the chargee or the nominee of the chargee shall create a security interest in the security which is the subject of the charge.
- (2) A security interest in deposited securities to secure the payment of a debt or liability may be created in favour of a chargee upon the request of the chargee by an instrument of charge in the form prescribed under the central securities depository rules executed by the charger.
- (3) Subject to this Act or to rules made by the Commission, a security interest shall not be created in deposited securities.
- (4) An instrument of charge that creates a security interest in a deposited security in favour of another person shall be deposited with the central securities depository where the securities charged are held,[sic] for registration.
- (5) The central securities depository agent shall on receipt of the instrument of charge deposited register the instrument in a register of charges maintained by the central security depository.
- (6) If a charge over a deposited security is being discharged or released, the central securities depository or its agent, shall on receipt of a notice of the charge confirm the discharge or release and transfer the deposited security into the securities account of the charger.
- (7) This section shall not
 - (a) apply to floating charges,

(b) affect the validity and operation of floating charges in respect of deposited securities created under any law, and

(c) be construed to require the central securities depository to monitor, protect or give effect to an agreement or memorandum made between the charger and the chargee in respect of a charge; but the central securities depository or its agent, may require the charger or chargee to provide a supporting document of the charger on the creation of the security interest by way of the charge.

Section 42—Securities in or under suspense

(1) A depository may specify a deposited securities account to be in suspense

(a) where the transfer of the security in the name of the central securities depository or its nominee company is not registrable by the issuer,

(b) where an application for withdrawal of the security has been made by a depositor, or

(c) in circumstances prescribed by the depository under the central securities depository rules.

(2) A depository may specify that a book-entry security in a security account is under suspense

(a) where there is a need for the central securities depository to restrict the transfer, charge or mortgage of the security in the event of an objection or investigation made in accordance with the central securities depository rules, and

(b) where the depository has been instructed to restrict the movement of book-entry transfers by the Commission or by a court of competent jurisdiction.

Security, secrecy and investigation provisions

Section 43—Security measures

Each depository and its depository agent shall take reasonable measures to protect information and documents related to the affairs of depositors and in particular,[sic] related to their securities accounts, against unauthorised access by persons.

Section 44—Duty to maintain secrecy

(1) Subject to this Act, a director, officer, employee or agent of a central securities depository or any other person who has access to information or document related to the affairs of a depositor and securities accounts of a depositor shall not disclose the information or the contents of a document to another person.

(2) A person who has information, which to that person's knowledge was disclosed in contravention of subsection (1) shall inform the depository of the disclosure.

(3) A person who contravenes this section commits an offence and is liable on summary conviction to a fine of five hundred penalty units or imprisonment for a term of not less than three years, or to both.

Section 45—Permitted disclosures

A person shall not disclose information or a document in respect of deposited securities to another person except

- (a) if the depositor, the depositor's authorised agent or personal representative, has given permission in writing for the disclosure,
